

NEXT Magazine

October 11, 2007
Circulation: 200,000
New York, NY

SCENE & HEARD

Scene & Heard → Gay D.D. → Back in the Gay → Getting Personal →

On the Box → Late-night Confessional → Behind the Scene Downtown →

GAY D.D.

By Matt Bell.

If you missed last week's Gay D.D. read on to catch up on everything that's happened!

Got gay-tention deficit disorder? Wake up waiting for the Marc Jacob's show to start as Jennifer Hudson fetches you a coffee? Read on...

1. The colder air is slowly but surely descending upon us, which means only one thing—all the gay drama in your life will return indoors, and fittingly, here! Network's Dante's Cove will return for its third season starting on October 17.
2. Meanwhile, MTV ups the gay ante twofold this fall, first by airing Legally Blonde: The Musical in its entirety on September 29 (making all the gay boys happy) and second by airing a bisexual dating reality show called A Shot at Love that stars Tila Tequila (making all the lezzies smile).
3. The gay east-west divide will become a bit more nebulous next year as Chelsea boys infiltrate E-Vill, if rumors are indeed correct that David Barton Gym will take over the lease of the Astor Place Barnes & Noble.
4. One thing that Gotham gays can all agree on no matter where they live is that they do enjoy watching Naked Boys Singing!, which just so happens to be opening in film form at the Quad on October 12.
5. The Big Apple will be getting yet another new, big Apple Store, this time in Brooklyn, though an exact location has not yet been determined. Reader your earbuds, boys!
6. We're thrilled that Jennifer Hudson will join the cast of some other dream girls on Sex and the City for its silver screen adaptation, but, um, did they have to cast the only black character as Carrie Bradshaw's assistant? We're just sayin'...
7. On October 10 at 11:38am, members of 1138 Roses for Marriage Rights will gather in Union Square to read off each of the 1138 rights afforded to heterosexual marriages that gay couples are denied.

8. More importantly (in some circles), Marc Jacobs started his Spring '08 fashion show two hours late, spurring Anna Wintour to bail the show before the last look was even off the runway.

9. IndianaJones.com has confirmed that the new film will be called Indiana Jones and the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull—which sounds like a weekend-long circuit party to us!

10. And the bathroom in the Minneapolis airport where Senator Larry Craig infamously tapped his foot into the history books has become a popular tourist destination, not unlike the peek-a-boo urinals at Splash!